START WITH THE DECISION

Submitted is a stage, not the finish.

A property workflow needs a clear distinction between sending a request and checking its result. A receipt alone should not become a completion claim.

Check the procedure itself.

DLD's Dubai REST guide includes Procedure Status Enquiry. Select that service and enter the requested information to view the result.

Match the reference.

Follow the current enquiry screen and enter the information for your own request. Check the reference carefully; an example in a guide is not your application.

Keep different statuses separate.

A procedure result concerns the procedure you looked up. A project's construction progress is a different question and uses a different enquiry.

Use precise status words.

A practical internal log: submitted, result checked, then the exact status shown. Keep an unresolved result unresolved instead of assuming success.

Keep a small evidence trail.

Save the relevant reference, observation time and result securely. Share only the details needed for the next step, not a public copy of private documents.
